

America

I am inspired by America because the soldiers fight for our rights. That is why we have the five freedoms in the First Amendment. You can live your dreams and goals. The rights we have are freedom of speech, religion, press, protest, and assembly.

The freedom of speech is the right to express opinions and own words without censorship. The freedom of religion is to believe what you want to. The freedom of press is the right to publish your thoughts and opinions in a book, online, or in a newspaper. The freedom of assembly is the right to hold a meeting and negotiate the subject. The freedom of petition is the right to ask the government to make relief for a wrong government decision.

These rights help us because the freedom of speech will let you speak your thoughts. The freedom of religion will let you believe what you want to without the government punishing you. The freedom of press will let you write down your opinions and thoughts. The freedom of assembly will help you because you can group up people and discuss a topic. Finally, the freedom of petition which can help you by asking the government to fix a mistake.

Soldiers help us by making us able to have the rights we do now such as freedom of speech, religion, press, assembly, and petition. Other ways I'm inspired by America is because of the citizens that fight for themselves and other people. A good example of that is Martin Luther King Jr.

Martin Luther King Jr. fought for other peoples and his own rights by enabling voting rights for African Americans. He did that by holding a few peaceful protests and ended up winning the voting rights. He made over 2,500 public speeches in his lifetime. The speech that he was most famous for was 'I Have a Dream Speech'. His 'I Have a Dream Speech' impacted many African Americans in a positive way because it was the words he said "I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

The reason I am inspired by America is because the soldiers fight for theirs and other peoples rights and citizens like MLK fought for his and African Americans civil rights.
